

Friday, March 3, 2017

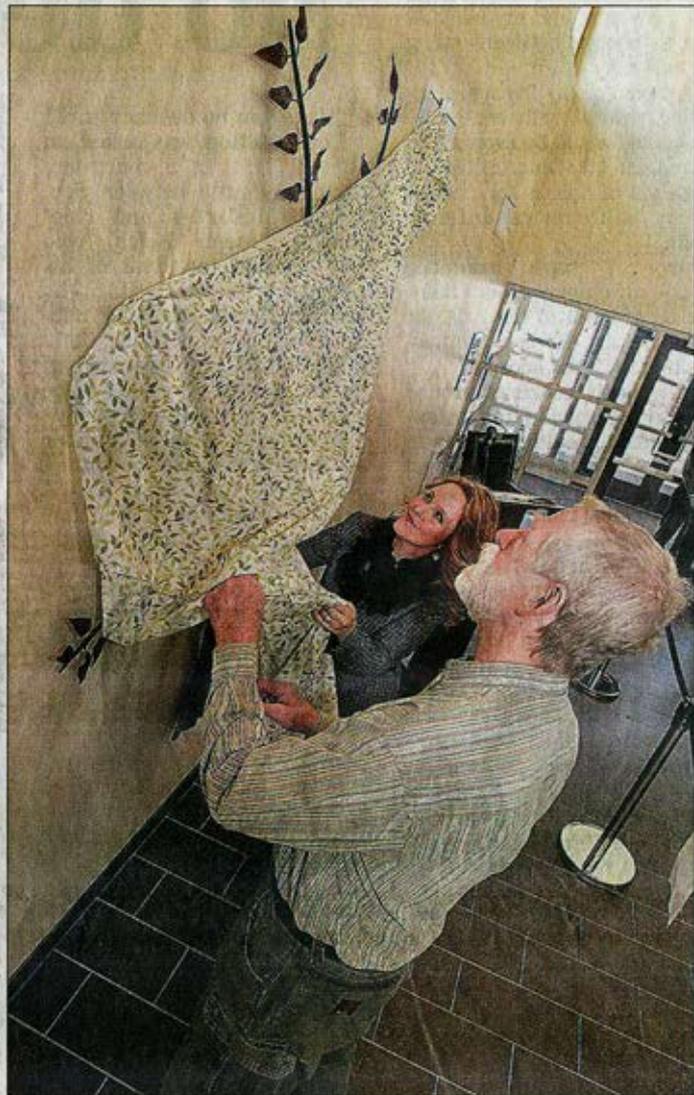

Putting up roots

The Washington County Commission on Aging unveiled a sculpture Thursday at the Senior Activities Center near the corner of East Franklin and Willard streets in Hagerstown.

At right, artist Lee Badger and commission Executive Director Amy Olack unveil the hanging sculpture in the lobby of the activities center. The piece was commissioned by the agency, which wanted a likeness of its logo of a tree, representing being rooted, continuously growing and providing opportunities for others, Olack wrote in an email to Herald-Mail Media.

Badger of Anvil Works in Hedgesville, W.Va., created the work, providing the commission with a discount, Olack said. A long list of donors covered the $4,500 cost, she said.

photos by Kevin G. Gilbert
Chief Photographer